Martin Luther King, Jr. was a very inspiring and influential man to the people. He was known for his activism and led many protests and one, The Civil Rights Movement in the mid 1950s to the 1960s. Slavery was abolished but the protest was to end racial discrimination and segregation since they still didn't have equal rights. On August 28, 1963 The March on Washington for Jobs and Freedom was not only to demand equal justice for all citizens but it was when Martin Luther King, Jr. would be remembered for his "I Have a Dream" speech. The first time he mentioned his dream to the people was during the Great Walk to Freedom in Detroit on June 23, 1963. During his "I Have a Dream" speech Martin Luther King, Jr. said, " I have a dream that one day this nation will rise up and live out the true meaning of its creed: 'We hold these truths to be self-evident that all men are created equal.'... little black boys and black girls will be able to join hands with little white boys and white girls as sisters and brothers. I have a dream today." I believe that Martin Luther King, Jr. said those words as a call for equality and to hope for the future that the people will finally get to come together as one, no matter the race or color of their skin. I feel we all have the same rights and are equal in some way but there are still a portion who still believe in racial discrimination today. Around the summer of 2020 there was a Black Lives Matter protest because of the way white policemen took care of a situation with a black man in Minneapolis. At the end it had come to the policemen killing an innocent black man who was yelling he couldn't breathe and was treated as if he was nothing. On January 6, 2021 Trump allies stormed the US Capitol wreaking havoc and were walking in the complex for several hours. When compared policemen were violent and made more arrests to the BLM protests, while on the other hand these Trump allies are able to walk around destroying or taking property with no problem, are able to leave as if nothing happened and were able to get policemen to help walk them down the stairs. When thinking of this and what Martin Luther King, Jr. dreamed of it can't live up to the fact that there are still white supremacist and if he was still here today seeing how the world has come to, he would still fight for equality, freedom, and justice.
