

Maia Quarles
City Hill Middle School

I will be writing about Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and his I have a dream speech. When Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was saying his I have a dream speech he was explaining to the world that he wants to have equality for African Americans, to not be judged by the color of their skin, and to have peace between races and for there to be justice. Now Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s speech is known for being a powerful speech to end racism violence and have equality and peace. After Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s I have a dream speech, today racism has improved than it was in 1963, but racism and violence still exists today in 2018, so Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s I have a dream speech has had a pretty significant impact.

Today Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. 's speech still makes an impact and we celebrate Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s Day every year to honor him. The outcome of the situation of racism and violence is better now than it was back then. The opportunities African Americans were given back then were more malicious and gruesome, but now it has improved, although there are still signs and activities that reflect racism and violence today.

If I were to make the situation better, I would have made racism and discrimination towards African Americans illegal in every state. If there were no struggles with racism and discrimination, the world would be a better and better place to live in. It would also improve on diversity of people living in this country and being comfortable with one another since there are so many people from different countries and cultures. This will better improve equality, peace and justice for all.

My dream is to help the world through contributions by traveling around the world to bring awareness of equality and justice, and assist others who need help. My dream relates to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s I have a dream speech because we're both African Americans and want to help our nation and society to make this world a better place and bring justice and equality to all. In addition for the world to be a happy and healthier place in the future, in which everyone is joyful in an environment with peace and prosperity.