Dear Senators Murphy and Cassidy,

Mental Health Liaison Group, representing consumers, families, providers, and organizations advocating to strengthen access to high-quality mental and behavioral health care, strongly support the Mental Health Parity Compliance Act of 2019. Your bipartisan leadership on this issue is critical for individuals living with mental illnesses and substance use disorders.

The Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act (Federal parity law), which passed more than ten years ago was designed to make insurance coverage for mental health and substance use disorder treatment no more restrictive than insurance coverage for any other medical condition. Unfortunately, more than a decade after the law was enacted, health plans and insurers generally are not yet meeting the requirements of the law that govern how they design and apply their managed care practices for mental health and substance use services.

Your legislation fosters transparency and accountability, to ensure that health plans complying with the Federal parity law and that those confronting mental illness have equal access and coverage of needed mental health and behavioral health services. For far too long, individuals and their families have endured barriers to mental health and substance use disorder treatment that are likely more restrictive than those in place for other medical care. It is incredibly difficult for those confronting mental illness and their families to know if plans are complying with the law, given its complexity and the inherent challenge in trying to compare how mental health and substance use disorder coverage matches up with other medical coverage. Therefore, the legislation provides a needed process that requires transparency and accountability in how plans design coverage for mental health and substance use services and if that coverage is in accordance with federal law.

We have seen a dramatic rise in deaths resulting from the opioid epidemic and suicide crisis. This legislation will help ensure that patients have equal access and coverage to mental health and substance use services, as required under current law.

The Mental Health Liaison Group thanks you again for your bipartisan commitment to achieving complete implementation of the Federal Parity Law and pledges our support to help you move this legislation through Congress.
